In December 1945 Thomas Mann wrote a famous letter to Adorno in which he formulated the principle of montage adopted in his novel Doctor Faustus. The writer expressly invited the philosopher to consider with me how such a work and I mean Leverkühns work could more or less be practically realized. Their close collaboration on questions concerning the character of the fictional composers putatively late works Adorno produced specific sketches which are included as an appendix Begun during their joint exile in California and ending with Mann's death just a few days before a long postponed reunion in post war Europe this correspondence between the twentieth century's most brilliant philosopher of modernism and the legendary G
