By Chris Naticchia : A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States: On Rawls, the Social Contract, and Membership in the International Community business ethics also known as corporate ethics is a form of applied ethics or professional ethics that examines ethical principles and moral or ethical problems judicial activism reconsidered like many catchwords quot;judicial activismquot; has acquired so many different meanings as to obscure more than it reveals A Law of Peoples for Recognizing States: On Rawls, the Social Contract, and Membership in the International Community:

Which political entities should the international community recognize as member states mdash granting them the rights and powers of statehood and entitling them to participate in formulating adjudicating and implementing international law What criteria should it use and are those criteria defensible From Kosovo Palestine and Taiwan to South Sudan Scotland South Ossetia Abkhazia and Catalonia these questions continuously arise and constantly challenge What criteria should determine which states the international community recognizes Should we set strict minimum standards or be flexible in the interest of bringing lagging states along in their progress toward justice Should we recognize states
